MAIN STREET PAVING. Many Difficulties Met With as the Work Progresses.

The citizens of the city are com-mencing to realize that the project of paving Main street is no small task and that it is accompanied with at-tendant difficulties that have to be ov-ercome with hard, careful and pains-taking work on the part of more than one man.

The grade of the street has had to be established as best it could be to conform to certain portions of intersecting streets and passageways. Fractically every such way has had to be cut down and quite a number of manholes and gratings.

The work of cutting down the passageway between the Franklin Had block and the A. C. Andrew Music company's store has been completed. The North street job has also been worked on, and the manholes lowered as well as the gratings changed and P. A. Weeks, the well known truckman, is building a bungalow out of combustible materials, and inside the fire district, also. While in conversation with an ex-fire chief of the local department recently he casually alluded to his little controversy with the fire marshal and said: "There'll be no such altercation this time, as I've got him; for, you see, the building in process of construction is on wheels and if he gets after me I'll simply worked on, and the manholes lowered as well as the gratings changed and done away with. It is found to be necessary that North street at its intersection with Main street must be gradually cut down a trifle so as to slope into the Main street without a thank you marm, and to do this satisfactorily North street will have to be paved a distance of ten feet or so. This will be a big improvement upon the present condition of the busy corner. It is said that the same plan will have to be followed at Bank street. The completed job will, however, be enough better to warrant its being done and the citizens of the city will be much better satisfied in the vill be much better satisfied in the nd, it is believed.
